FOREWORD

The Academian is the one school publication which the graduates are likely to keep until it falls apart. It is a volume to be examined with delight and nostalgic reminiscence year after year. It is a book to show to one's children and grandchildren.

A yearbook cannot capture all of a school's life, but it can and does catch the highspots, and it contains all sorts of memories in snap shots and phraseology, which make for amusement throughout the years. Here we see the formal, dignified portraits of the faculty, with expressions often very different from those seen in class, at the dinner table, or on the playing field. Here we see portraits of the seniors, groomed and trimmed, again somewhat different from the way we see them every day. Here we see classes, houses, organizations and teams, all grouped as they never are normally, but representing a frozen moment of unity and immobility for future generations to view with interest. Here we read the quips of the year and the advertisements so laboriously gathered by student salesmen.

It is a book that will mean something a little different to everyone, but one which should offer something for every taste. Always it will stand as the product of hard work by the board, who have spent long hours assembling the material. I hope you will find it as absorbing as I have.

Dedication

MR. THEODORE R. LEAMAN

To have been associated with Mr. Leaman has meant much to the class of 1950. An outstanding teacher, a sound coach, and an understanding and considerate housemaster whose uncanny ability has solved many "unsolvable" problems, best describes this man. All of this coupled with his mild manner and well-known twinkle in his eye is the reason for Mr. Leaman's popularity. This year's senior class feels that it is an honor to dedicate the 1950 Academian to a man who, during his twenty-five years on the faculty, has contributed so much to Shady Side.

ADVERTISEMENTS

The editors of the Academian have chosen this mid-century year of 1950 to look back over the nearly seventy years of Shady Side's past, hoping that a study of the fascinating story of the Academy's founding and growth will stimulate an interest in the past and provide inspiration for the future.

It was an era of prosperity, of growth, of wealth — Big Business was beginning to boom. The panic of 1873-1878 was only a bad memory. Newly built railroads, more highly-developed mines, oil wells, coke ovens, and steel mills using the new Bessemer Converter were bringing more and more prosperity to wealthy Pittsburghers. Men built lavish new homes in the increasingly-fashionable East End section — homes with electricity and telephones, and homes with sons to be given a "formal education." No longer was the future mill owner to learn everything in his father's shop, for Shady Side Academy was founded in 1883 to provide this new education for some.

A Professor William Ralston Crabbe had been tutoring a small group of boys in a stable in Allepheny City, now the Northside, a section fast losing its distinction as the home of Pittsburgh's elite. Thousands of Polish and Slavic laborers, who had come to work in the mills, made it "undesirable" for the homes of the men whose pockets they filled. Professor Crabbe's boys were receiving instruction in Latin and Greek in preparation for college when he was approached by a few East End men and asked to found a preparatory school in the Shadyside district. This he did in 1883, in a small brick building off Aiken Avenue. The first senior class, containing two boys, was graduated in

The next fifteen years saw the growth of the new school into a strong and permanent institution with a faculty, by 1900, numbering 14 men. The first Academian, appearing in 1897, pictures football, basketball, hockey, track, and baseball teams. Incidentally, the average age of the gridders that year was 19 years, 7 months, the average weight, 144 pounds. They won four out of six games, losing only to Kiski. Every track meet featured a bicycle race, while the basketball team cavorted in knickers. September 23, 1895, marked the first issue of the Shady Side News, with Mr. Southard Hay as editor. Musical groups included a glee club and banjo and mandolin ensembles. There were, in fact, some banjo and mandolin players around the school until late in the 1920's. Two secret fraternities functioned, one of which gave the first school dance on December 30, 1895.

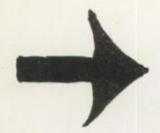

Moving in 1885 from the original site on Aiken Avenue to the building which still stands, the school occupied from that time until 1922 the block bounded by Ellsworth, Morewood, Amberson, and Bayard. An addition doubled the size of the building in 1897.

After twenty-five years of steady growth, Shady Side Academy went into a period of decline. In 1913 Dr. Crabbe resigned as principal, to be succeeded by Mr. Luther B. Adams. Although there seems to have been at that time an excellent faculty, the school fared badly in the competition offered by the large new free high schools, Schenley and Peabody. Movies, and other forms of entertainment, in the nearby metropolis of East Liberty were blamed for the lack of study. It seems that Junior didn't study as well at Shady Side as he did in the Eastern prep schools.

Not only did the School fall in local esteem, but it seems also to have been decaying from within. The plant was hardly adequate to the needs. The playing field was too small for regulation football or baseball, and the gymnasium was in such a condition that some visiting teams even refused to play in it. An athletic director resigned in 1916 to go into the chicken raising business. The News ceased publication, giving way in 1911 to Knick Knacks, a collection of stilted products of the faculty pen and unfunny attempts at student humor, plus a few respectable jokes taken from exchange publications. No Academians can be found from this same period. In more ways than one Shady Side was coming apart, for from about 1907 on the name was written in two words as it still is.

Plans were undertaken in 1916 to pump new life into the Academy and to move it to a more intellectually stimulating location in Fox Chapel. The World War (in which 297 Shady Siders served) delayed further action until 1919. At that time Mrs. Wallace Rowe consented to donate 125 acres of land if at least $500,000 was raised to carry out the project of building a new school plant. A campaign among alumni and prominent citizens raised $1,000,000. Armed with a noble-sounding prospectus of which the first item was, "Pure air, fresh milk, vegetables from (the school's) own garden," the trustees drew up plans calling for a layout similar to that of the present campus.

Ground was broken in February, 1922, and on May 22 the cornerstone of Rowe Hall was laid. School opened after a fashion on the new campus that fall. Forty boys and Mr. Shriver were forced to live on the third floor of Rowe Hall while they waited for Morewood to be completed. Although there was a kitchen in the present locker room and a dining room in the present Chapel, the faculty were forced to cook their dinner the night before school opened over an open fire behind the headmaster's apartment in Ellsworth.

The program to give Shady Side renewed vigor included more than merely moving to the country. A new headmaster, Mr. Harold A. Nomer, was appointed in 1919 and came here from Lawrenceville. Added to the faculty were Dean Merle M. Alexander, Captain William A. Palmer, and Mr. Charles P. Shriver. A dramatic club was organized and produced its first play, Doctor in Spite of Himself, in 1920. After a lapse of several years, S.S.A. again put a football team on the field in 1920. Mr. Shriver directed a glee club and a chapel choir. A student council was organized to enforce the honor system then in use. There was even a Boy Scout troop.

After the opening of the country school, the Sargon Society was set up to replace the banned Greek-letter societies. The News was revived as Knick Knacks ceased publication. St. Andrew's and the Forum were organized on much the same bases upon which they now function. The athletic program took on new life, with inter-house competition playing a major role.

Firmly fixed now in its country location, Shady Side roared along with the Roaring Twenties. The enrollment climbed from the low 114 of the first year to 243 in 1930. Two new activities, the Seven Arts Club and the Aero Club made their respective appearances in 1924 and 1928. A varsity soccer squad took the field in 1928; varsity wrestling began in the winter of 1929-1930. A gun club was organized first in 1923, reorganized in 1927 under Mr. Louis C. Celestin, and continued in existence periodically until 1942. There were attempts to have a hockey team at one time or another, but the uncertainty of the winters prevented hockey from ever becoming a major sport. Even a polo team fought for dear old S.S.A. for several years in the late twenties and early thirties.

During the depression an effort was put forth to have the school operate under a seven-day boarding plan instead of the five-day system. In 1934 all boarding students were required to spend the week-ends at school, classes were held six days a week, and special permissions were necessary for a boy to go home over week-ends. Special entertainments were provided for the full-time boarders, including full-length movies in the gym on Saturday nights. Prominent local ministers preached on the campus for the Sunday morning church services, and at one time the school even employed its own chaplain. Several years later, however, Shady Side returned to what seemed to be the more practical and advantageous plan of five-day boarding.

After emerging from the depression somewhat beaten but far from bowed, Shady Side lost the headmaster who had served it since 1919. Dr Harold A. Nomer resigned during the summer of 1937, stating that he had acted as long as any man should in such a position. Mr. Demas E. Barnes replaced him, acting as head for one year. Mr. E. Trudeau Thomas was appointed headmaster in 1938 and was joined by Mr. Roger B. Merriman, former head of the Arnold School, in the fall of 1940 as a result of the merger in that year of the two schools. Mr. Thomas resigned in February of 1941 to go into the armed service. In the summer of 1942 Mr. Merriman followed his footsteps, accepting a commission in the Navy. Mr. Clifton O. Page assumed the position of acting headmaster from September, 1942, until June, 1944. Dr. Erdman Harris, the second headmaster to come from Lawrenceville, began his first school term at Shady Side in September of 1944.

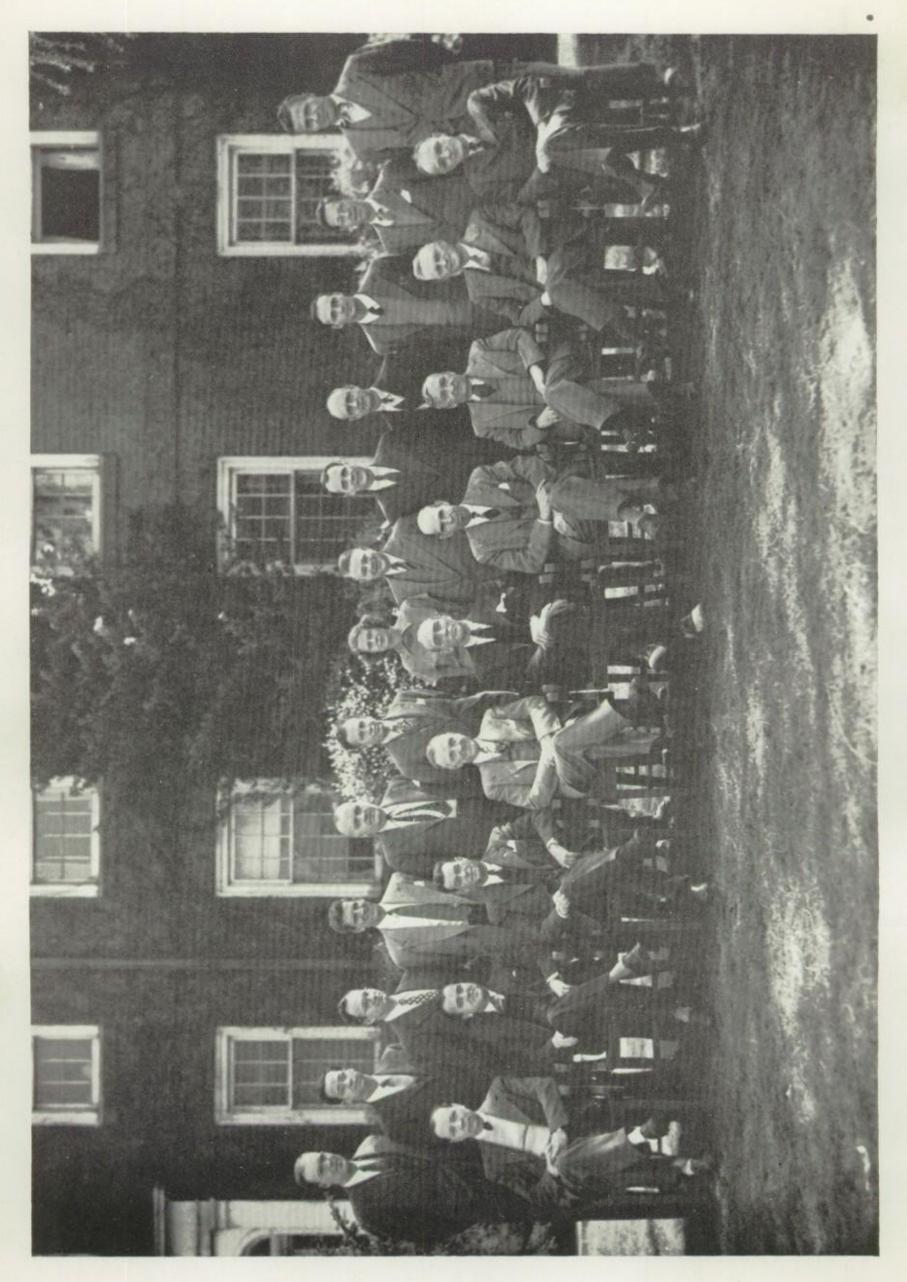

The merger with the Arnold School was announced in January of 1940 after three years of negotiations between the boards of the two schools. Arnold, a college preparatory school similar to S.S.A., occupied the site of our present Junior School at 400 South Braddock Avenue. The merger was agreed upon after it had been felt by many that Pittsburgh could not support two such schools. A wave of protest from Arnold students soon gave way to a unified spirit, and the move proved a success. Resulting major changes included moving our Junior School to the former Arnold property and the release of several faculty members.

Shortly afterward the time came for Shady Side to play its rôle in a second world war. Forty-four Shady Siders made the supreme sacrifice; hundreds of others participated in the various branches of the services. Students and faculty members carried on as civilians, participating in first aid classes, air raid protection programs, and war bond sales drives. Conservation of tires and gasoline forced the alteration of

DAY STUDENT PREPARING FOR CARNEGIE TECH

All houses wherein men do live and die Are houses haunted by their souls. In history their deeds we glorify, As we plant them six feet deep in holes.

Who are we who men's souls sanctify, While their bodies we embalm? We're friendly undertakers as our hearts outcry Into that quiet which comes before the qualm.

We finished back in '50 at Shady Side, Little knowing what future's dice would roll: Depression, war, a hundred things beside; And finally our job around a six-foot hole.

The spirit world around this world of sense Floats like an atmosphere, and everywhere Our inscriptions short histories dispense To all who want to read and learn and care.

Pause and read awhile: you can Follow through our stories; See what struck them, man by man, In the middle of their glories.

Here lies Adams, player of fiddle and licorice sticks. Through life he went one in hand, one by his side. Public acclaim came neither fast nor thick; John tried for years, gave up, and died.

Poor Bannerot — he met a miserable fate — Of stories was a real uncorker. Of Russia Freddie wrote with hate While working on the Daily Worker.

Around the neck of him buried here Hangs a keg of foaming beer. To this the answer is not hard -This fellow died a St. Barnard.

Paul Benedum fell down a well, Found more oil, and laughed. But this was grease he could not sell, For here he got the shaft.

Alan Blackwood died on the equator. It wasn't known how until much later. It seems the natives there did misbehave -They didn't-like his Toni wave.

When Venus was to be explored Jim Brown, of course, would volunteer. Flying, though, he soon deplored And bailed out in the stratosphere.

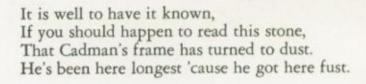

"Hey, girls!" he yelled, and jumped the net, "Brownell has won the tennis set!" But from this leap he had a fall. He hit the net and that was all.

You'll notice here that all's quite still, For this is the grave of a Butler named Bill. It seems that this boy just ain't no mo', Since he racked up in a Dynaflo.

As a steeple Jack he reached great fame, On church spires having earned his name. All was fine where J. C. perched Until one fine day a Church lurched.

"Tool" Conner really played it sharp When he learned how to play the harp. With flashing smile and such a charming chortle He's now the greeter at the Pearly Portal.

Although James was really his name He couldn't get used to the same. Yet nicknames, it seems, finally hurt him, sir; For Cook didn't move when they yelled "Tim-ber."

Another romantic conservative, Tony Cook, had many a story. But always for him and his buddy He used to save all the glory.

Fishing was Cuda's favorite pastime, But with women he wasn't a thinker. When a new gal gave him a fast time, He swallowed her hook, line, and sinker. When Demmler dressed up as a beauty, He did so as his sacred duty. This hero lived a life quite scary— The O.S.S.'s Mata Hari.

Out of love of science and all the heavens A career was made by Arthur Evans. In the realm of numbers he made a path, And now he's here — still aftermath.

Of all in his class his fame was renowned He specialized sinfully in sin. Though now buried six feet under ground, He's still, they say, "in like Finn."

He died a Wall Street tycoon. Charles Fisher, the brightest class flash, In an economic typhoon, Forgot to duck in the crash.

This modernistic mausoleum Belongs to Alan Isaac William Frank. You're welcome to pause - 'n - see - 'im; But when you leave, be sure to thank.

Franklin's view of girls was low:
"All there is to know I know."
Though life was gay he'd say not so.
Where he is now he'll burn his toe.

Read now the case of Dan Hake, Who met his bad fate at a clambake. Some one took the dapper Dan Mistakenly to be a half-baked clam.

Mark the sad fate of Heymann, Phil, Who tried in vain to down the Mark III. He met his match — soon got his fill. He lies now dead — our poor Luigi.

Beneath this stone, beneath this rose, Hoopes lies here six feet deep. The River Styx more quietly flows Since Ted just fell asleep.

Peter Crow Hunter, smoothest in school, When it came to women had only one rule— Love 'em and leave 'em and date their worst foes. But Pete's dead now and anything goes.

He almost went to Hollywood, For Irvin seemed to dance on air. Now he's in heaven and still good, Our poor man's Fred Astaire.

Tall and handsome Jenkins, Paul, To love in life gave his all. A bachelor he died in Village, Chatham Here he is, girls, you can have 'im.

Disproving the statement of brawn but no brain, Here lies the conductor on a passenger train. Instead of using "All aboard" for his yell, He advertised always the name of Kappel.

Koehler, beating his gums excessively, While driving struck a misplaced tree— He knows well now, this lover of the pack, That teeth, once gone, just don't grow back.

John McCague lies beneath this soil. His tragic life at last is o'er. And when he quit his earthly toil. You bet he died a bachelor.

Ulcers got him early, Life was sweet but brief. McClay specialized in worry; Here he finds relief.

McElravey never died. His bones will never turn to lime. For in a race so hard he tried, He got a way ahead of time.

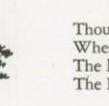

Deep under here is Malvin in Hades. Something to do with the Grier School ladies. Others for sure have wrestled, too, But not while trying to pitch the woo.

Full of wrestling assurance He kept his teeth in a can. Murphy, always the class success, Lived and died a confidence man.

O'Brien, the class musician, Joined with a band first rate. Playing "America" in far off Siberia He met his sad, sad fate.

Though tears should come, please don't mope When you read, "Here lies John Pope." The life he led was so wild and full, The Indians crowned him "Slinging Bull."

Poor Rommy was stabbed by a Cum Laude key, He always had said that he'd show us. At basketball Ream finally paid off his fee For loving the game more than Lois. Leader of students, David Reed Became dictatorial and self-elated. When for his breeches he got too big, He found himself soon liquidated.

With muscles tense, and lips so tight, Old Mac Reed passed away one night. With bashful mein he left the race When a female kissed him smack on the face.

Thick bright horn-rimmed glasses Helped him to see all small lasses. With women sure he was no sloth, That casual, casual Leonard Roth.

Along came June; his life was more cheery. Jim Roush spent summers up at Lake Erie. But love such as his for the water is not suited; He got such a charge he was 'lectrocuted.

This one died between the Scheetz— The quietest of all his feats. He tried to argue with the devil; Now he's on a lower level.

Fighting Bill Skinner
Was a Golden Gloves winner.
Although in the ring he could usually win,
His wife finally beat him — with a rolling pin.

Here is planted a rugged type. He always went coatless and hatless. Pneumonia got him at middle age ripe: Jim Smith, the class Charles Atlas.

Keyhole Smith fixed the drain, And fell right in without a strain. They say he died without a smile; With cursing oaths and language vile.

With lanky frame and hairless head, Totally devoid of curls, Johnny Steel still got along — Just ask the girls!

What kind of noise annoys an oyster? How much wood can a woodchuck chuck? Questions such as these still bothered Steim When he ran electronically amuck.

Hampden Tener went out for a swim — Nudo corpore, if that's not a sin.
While swimming he saw on his right-hand flank
Some girls swimming toward him — H.T. just sank.

The body stretched beneath this dirt Once bore a hep-cat's be-bop shirt. Caught by his keychain in a numbers raid, Poor Pat Thoma just fell down daid.

The pride of Steubenville is dead: Robert Truesdale lost his head. An Indian took his fuzz off With an axe, when Bob said "Buzz off."

When Turner died with a smile on his lips, He'd just cashed in on some bookie's tips. He praised to heaven that wonderful horse, And took his winnings without remorse.

Here lies Jack Warden, the class's "wild goose," His duty wouldn't let him out on the loose. Twas many a girl that he left with a sigh; To death he has gone with his wandering eye.

Don't say you don't know where or when, 'Cause you know you're here and this is Wehn. His neck was broken in a tight full nelson; From a wrestling career he went to hell, son.

The sun shines east, the sun shines west. And east is east and here lies West, Head to the east; to the West the feet. Never, oh never, the twain shall meet.

POSTLUDE

Pity the poets who strain at phrases;
Pity the chiselers hacking at stones;
Pity the writers of all men's praises;
Pity the remnants of us, now bones;
Pity the girls from whom we've departed;
Pity the ones who never did know us;
Pity the lasses we've left brokenhearted;
Pity the readers of books by Smith & Boas;
Pity the readers with whom we have striven;
Pity the parents who've footed our bills;
Pity all students to hard work driven;
(Just like workers oppressed in mills);

Pity anything, everything, hard as you may; Pity — yes, pity, as much as you can — But don't pity us, for we're here to say We've lived life and loved it, man by man.

HONORARY

Sargon Society

The Sargon Society, founded in 1922, is the only extracurricular honorary organization of the Academy. Only members of the Fifth and Sixth forms who have made outstanding contributions to some phase of school life are selected. Four formal tap days are held each school year at which time those who are eligible are "tapped." At the end of a fifteen-day pledge period, during which the pledge must conform to certain regulations, a secret ritual initiation takes place.

Cum Laude

In 1929 Shady Side became a member of the National Cum Laude Society, which resembles the Phi Beta Kappa in the colleges. Only twenty per cent of the graduating class and only those boys who have averaged eighty per cent or better in their last two years are eligible for membership. The first selection of the top four or five is made immediately following mid-year examinations, while the rest are chosen on graduation day. The five boys pictured here had obtained high enough averages to warrant the honor at mid-years.

DISCUSSION

St. Andrews

The St. Andrew's Society of Shady Side is a restricted discussion group, meeting in bi-weekly sessions on Wednesday evenings in the library. Those boys of the upper three forms who are deemed likely to make the most notable contribution to informal discussions on religious and moral questions are voted into the Society. Beside the regular meetings under the direction of Dr. Erdman Harris and Mr. F. Walter Jones, Jr. and a joint meeting with the Winchester-Thurston School, St. Andrew's sponsored several meetings with outside speakers. Early in the year Mr. Robert P. Johnson set forth the Negro's viewpoint on racial prejudice; Mr. Elliott Dunlap Smith, provost of Carnegie Tech, attempted to widen the scope of Shady Siders' attitudes in selecting their life work; and, in a combined meeting with the Forum, Mr. Harbison, professor of industrial relations at the University of Chicago, spoke on the labor problems of the day.

The Forum

The Forum, alternating Wednesday evening meetings with St. Andrew's, is an organization open for membership to any boy in the top three forms. The only requirement is that each member attend as regularly as possible and contribute to the discussion. In the list of outside speakers for 1949-1950, Mr. Adolph Schmidt discussed finance, Mr. Joseph Thornton revealed the set-up of the F. B. I., and Mr. Frederick H. Harbison gave his views on the power of a Labor Union.

Debating Society

Participating in more debates than usual, the debating team under Mr. Cook's direction had a relatively successful season. The subject for discussion was "Proposed that the President of the United States be elected by the direct vote of the people." The beginning of a round-robin tournament with many of the district high schools marked a slight change and improvement over the tournament system of previous years.

Shady Side's only literary magazine, the Egerian, is a collection of student writing, collected over the year by the members of a board numbering seven, headed by Mr. Willard E. Mead. The paper-bound book, which is distributed in the spring, gives student writers a chance to prove their ability at writing poems, short stories, essays, or whatever they might choose.

ART GROUPS

The Art Club

Rigid reorganization of membership requirements plus strict keeping of attendance records have this year resulted in decreasing the number of members to a slightly smaller but more active group.

Aside from the usual pursuit of individual projects, members have cooperated in staging a series of exhibitions in Rowe Hall: "The Graphic Arts" (examples of the methods of reproducing art work); a one-man show of oils by David McCullough; "Christmas in Art;" a Life photographic exhibition, "Fine Arts under Fire;" and "Prize-Winning Student Art," a collection of award paintings from contests sponsored by the U. S. Time Corporation. On Commencement Day came the Sixth Annual Arts and Crafts Exhibit in the Art Room.

The Gargoyle Society is made up of those boys who assist most in the production of the Academy's annual play. This group, covering a wide variety of talents, includes besides actors, stage-workers, electricians, and advertising and production workers from the four upper forms.

March 24 saw this year's production, The Petrified Forest, staged at the Withers Gymnasium of the Junior School. This play offered not only difficult character interpretation but also ample humorous and realistic action.

A Cappella Glee Club

This year Mr. Howard strove for quality and not quantity in the Glee Club, as he reduced the membership to seventy-five boys from the one hundred and fourteen of last year. This organization is divided into four sections, each with a student leader, while the day students, although just as much a part of the group as the boarders, have two leaders of their own. The combined concerts with Winchester and Ellis Schools as usual proved to be tremendous successes.

The Fishing Club in its second year of existence at Shady Side proved once again to hold the interest and attention of all its members. Along with the tips received from Mr. Jones, the boys also see movies and hold discussions. For their main event of the year the club plans a week-end fishing trip. VARSITY FOOTBALL

MALCOLM W. REED, JR. DAVID G. McCullough MR. DEAN E. BAIR MR. F. WALTER JONES

With thirteen returning lettermen on the squad, Shady Side could not be blamed for looking forward with optimism toward the '49 season. The season's record of three wins and five losses does not by any means show the hard work put in by both the players and the coaches. The team rose only twice to the brand of football which Coach Bair knew they possesed. In the line Captain Mac Reed, and Jack Warden were outstanding at guard and end respectively. In the backfield Tom Warner, captain-elect for 1950, gained many valuable yards from the fullback post until he received an injury at W.R. A. which benched him for the remaining part of the season.

Spartans 31-13. Warner scored the first two touchdowns, climaxing sustained drives. McCague, Warden and Thoma also scored to give Shady Side their five touchdowns. Bill Skinner and Mac Reed were standouts of strength in the center of the line.

S. S. A. — 7 Perry — 13

A miserable exhibition of football at Perry High School on September 30 resulted in the first defeat suffered by the Blue and Gold. After Perry took the lead 7-0 in the second quarter, the Indians led by Tom Warner took the second-half kick-off and marched 80 yards for their lone score. Perry scored the final touchdown in the third period, on a pass, making the final score 13-7.

S. S. A.—18 Penn High—20

In a night game at Penn High School, the Indians, playing their best game of the season, dropped a hard-fought struggle to an experienced and powerful Penn team, 20-18. Outstanding passing by Thoma and Steel gave Shady Side two touchdowns as they connected with Franklin and Warden. Cadman continually kept Penn in its own territory with long, well-directed punts.

S. S. A. — 19 Cranbrook — 12

Coming from behind, the Blue and Gold defeated Cranbrook at Detroit 19-12. The Cranes scored two touchdowns making the score 12-0, before John Steel's pass to Warden climaxed a long drive at the close of the second quarter for Shady Side's first T. D. The entire second half the Indians completely controlled the offensive with Steel scoring on a quarterback sneak and McCague hitting pay dirt on a lateral from Warden.

S. S. A. — 0 University School — 19

On Saturday, October 22, a powerful University School team scored its 16th straight victory in defeating a determined S. S. A. eleven 19-0. The score at half-time was 7-0, as both teams displayed poor ball handling and interceptions were frequent. Toward the end of the third quarter the Indians yielded another University School touchdown. The league champs consummated their scoring efforts with six points in the final stanza.

S. S. A. — 0 Western Reserve — 33

The following week at Western Reserve Academy of Hudson, Ohio, the Shady Side gridders suffered their worst set-back of the season 33-0. Led by Ted Nyerges and Dan Davis, an old Shady Side boy, the team from Hudson completely dominated play throughout the game.

S. S. A. — 0 Indiana — 14

A small but tough Indiana squad handed the gridders a 14-0 lacing in a rainstorm, both touchdowns coming in the second quarter. Once again the Shady Side offense failed to catch fire, thus resulting in the third straight scoreless game for the Indians. A last-quarter comeback gave the Blue and Gold four successive first downs, but unfortunately they were not able to get to the final white stripe.

S. S. A. — 40 Nichols — 6

The Shady Side aggregation completed the season at home with a decisive victory over Nichols 40-6. Hunter, Warden, Nedde and McCague scored touchdowns as the Indians marched to their third win of the season and their second in league competition. This victory on November 12th enabled Shady Side to finish in third place in the final standings of the Interstate Preparatory League.

VARSITY SOCCER

DAVID M. REED JOHN W. CHURCH, JR. MR. PARKER BERG MR. WILLARD E. MEADE

Captain Manager Coach Assistant Coach

Although they got off to a slow start, towards mid-season the Shady Side soccer team, made up of only four returning lettermen, put together a fine passing attack and a stiff defense to capture second place in the Inter-State Prep League. This is the best record shown by any Indian soccer team in the last five years. The team was hopeful of a co-championship until the news was received that Western Reserve had downed University School 2-0. A tie or a University School win in this game would have meant the co-championship.

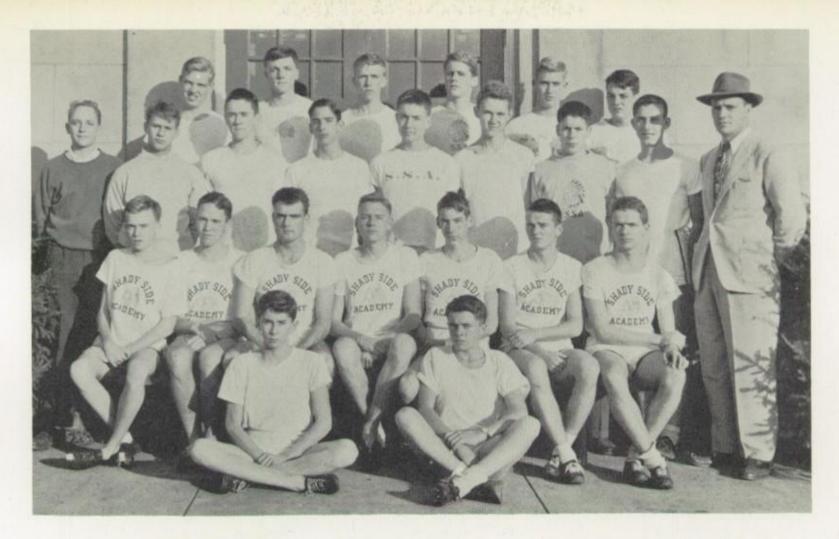

In the earlier part of the season, experience was lacking both in the line and backfield. The scarcity of scoring punch is shown by the fact that in the first four city games the Blue and Gold managed to make only two goals. The results were two losses to Connelly Vocational, 5-1 on September 29 and 1-0 on October 10. Washington Vocational also came out victorious in the first game of the year 1-0, but two weeks later, October 6, the Indians, with a goal by McClay finished with a 1-1 tie. Later in the season when the S. S. A. attack took form, Western Pennsylvania School for the Deaf was overwhelmed by a 5-2 score.

Starting off the league season, the booters defeated a much over-confident and favored Cranbrook team 1-0 at Detroit as Dick Cuda's goal made the trip home a victorious one. The next week-end Shady Side was host to University School whose center forward scored in the last five minutes to gain a 2-2 tie. W. R. A. accounted for the other tie game, as an over-time game finished in a 1-1 deadlock. Parker Berg's excellent job of coaching his inexperienced squad resulted in a well deserved 3-0 victory over Nichols School in the last game of the season.

The season's scoring honors went to Dave Wilkison, center forward and John Brownell, left inside, who pushed in four goals apiece. In the "All-League" circle, the representatives were Graham Henderson, Captain Dave Reed, Dave Wilkison and Bob Repp who is the captain-elect for the '51 season.

Lettermen: Frederick G. Bannerot III; Paul G. Benedum, Jr.; John E. Brownell, Jr.; Manager John W. Church; Richard S. Cuda; James M. Feldman; S. Graham Henderson II; William F. Hill II; George F. MR. RICHARD H. BRENNEMAN

Captain Manager Coach

Coached by Mr. Brenneman for the second straight year, the cross-country team finished with the best season in its three-year existence by winning three out of nine meets. The record in itself seems rather poor, but considering the calibre of the opponents, the closeness of many of the meets, and the inexperience of a majority of the team, the school may well be proud of the achievements of its harriers.

Jack Finn was outstanding among the runners, failing to place first only once and breaking the school record for the 2½ mile course. The only other letterman returning from the once-victorious '49 team, Captain Ted Hoopes, showed the experience of a three-year letterman in consistently finishing among the first three runners. The other lettermen, Ed Irvin, Charles Lory, and Bob Truesdale, won many valuable points for the team.

Led by Captain Jack Warden, the Shady Side basketball team retained the Interstate Preparatory School League Championship title which they won in the 1948-'49 season, while compiling a season record of twelve wins against seven losses. By taking the title this year, the Jonesmen have secured permanent possession of the William E. Seifert Jr. basketball trophy.

Although the Indians started the season rather slowly, a remarkable record of ten wins in their last twelve games turned a season which looked, at first to be dismal, into one of brilliant success. In the opener the hoopsters were defeated by the Alumni, 38-22. They then traveled to Oakmont where they came out on the good end of a 52-49 score. Losses to Shaler and Edgewood High schools by scores of 36-32 and 35-19 were followed by a thrilling 44-40 victory over West View High School. The Jonesmen bowed to Central Catholic 57-41 and the University of Pittsburgh freshmen 38-26, before downing St. James School of Maryland, 41-31. A week's layoff during mid-term examinations was followed by a heart-breaking loss to Springdale High School 38-35. The Indians then defeated Shaler in a return engagement 38-26 and won their first league encounter with Cranbrook on February 4, 58-40. After defeating West View High School for the second time 57-53, the hoopsters followed with a victory over Nichols School at Buffalo 50-35. The cagers then were again defeated by the Central Catholic aggregation 42-36. Starting on February 18 with a lopsided 59-36 victory at the expense of Western Reserve Academy, the Academy five won all their remaining games, two in League competition and three with local high schools. After W. R. A. fell, the Indians proceeded to collect the scalps of Perry High School 47-42, Linsly Military Institute 48-43, and Dormont 49-47. The climax of the season found S. S. A. pitted against University School at Cleveland, Ohio, with Shady Side emerging with a 55-34 victory, and the League title.

The Shady Side varsity wrestlers, captained by Jim Roush, finished their season in a two-way tie with University School for the Inter-State Preparatory School League championship. The season's record was ten wins and three losses.

In the opener the Indians got off to a good start as they downed Carnegie High School by a score of 22-14, and on January 10 Shady Side's matmen took Munhall in a very close match, 20-14. On January 13 the grapplers dropped their first contest to a hard-fighting Shaler team 23-19, but the Indians bounced back after their first defeat, trouncing a weaker West View team 28-8. Immediately after the mid-year exams the "Brennemen" suffered their second defeat by losing to Dormont High School. From this date, January 27, the wrestlers conquered seven straight opponents starting with a triumph over a powerful Pitt freshman team, 21-15. Cranbrook School provided the first League competition, with the grapplers whipping them easily 28-7. Another victory over West View, 29-8, was followed by a second win over the Pitt freshmen. The wrestlers took their second league match from Western Reserve Academy on February 18 by a score of 29-11, and in their last two matches with local high schools avenged the earlier defeat from Shaler and beat Munhall for the second time. The double win over Munhall proved to be the first time that Shady Side has managed to defeat this team on both ends of a home-and-home series.

The heart-breaking finish of the 1949-1950 season came on March 4 when the University School of Cleveland, Ohio, squeezed out a 23-21 victory to ruin for S. S. A. a possible undefeated season in League competition.

FEATURES

DAY BY DAY

The way of the second

Tuesday, September 7 — The peace and quiet of the summer campus is shattered by the large turnout of soccer and football hopefuls as the coaches bring out the blacksnake whips from summer mothballs and practice saying "Take two."

Thursday, September 9 — The Athletic Shop breaks all sales records for liniment and blister pads as dozens of would-be athletes painfully discover stiffness in muscles they previously hadn't even discovered.

Monday, September 19 — The long grind of summer vacation is finally over; smiling faces again eagerly scan new textbooks (to the tune of $37.69) happy to get back to the good old routine.

Tuesday, September 20 - Only sixty more days till Thanksgiving vacation.

Wednesday, September 21 — The Academian starts to begin to finish up the job of finding a printer.

Tuesday, September 27 — The new seniors chalk up number one as Neville Fowler pays dearly for absentmindedly strolling across the senior campus.

Friday, September 30 — John Brownell, Copy Editor of the News, uses his influence to get his picture in the paper for defeating his buddy George Kesel after twenty-seven hard-fought games to cop the Harvard Cup Tennis Tournament.

Friday, October 7 — Rody Marshall throws his hat into the ring and takes on the Herculean task of trying to teach a host of eager candidates for his driving school how to get a license with less wear and tear on Pop's auto. A reliable crystal ball could have told him that not only were the Republicans fated to fail, but also that all but one of the hopefuls would flunk out on the first crack at the Washington Boulevard testing ground.

Saturday, October 15 — Soccer and football hit the high road to Michigan, walloping Cranbrook 19-12 in football and 1-0 in soccer. Dick Cuda hogs the limelight, scoring the only goal of the game. Dave Wilkison gains some of the glory by sitting on the opposing goalie's head at the time of the shot.

Monday, October 17 — The Academian announces that after several offers the Board is still looking for a printer.

Saturday, October 22 — A U. S. goal in the last seconds of the game ties up the hair-raiser at 2-2, while a bone-crushing U. S. football squad meets unexpectedly rugged resistance, defeating our team 19-0.

Wednesday, October 26 — Tennis racketeer Pat-ball Brownell, Horrible Heymann, Squealer Demmler, Meanie McCullough, Crusher Warner, and Lotta-Bull Scheetz all strap on shoulder pads for the first Sargon Tap Day.

Saturday, October 29 — Another soccer tie at 1-1 partially salvages honor as a red-hot Western Reserve romps to a 33-0 football victory on their own field.

Friday, November 11 — Assignments for the Academian are listed. If the Board thinks of another feature, it will be forced to rename the book the Yacademian. Announcement is also made that the Board hopes to find a publisher in the near future. At this rate this drivel may never see print. That's bad?

Saturday, November 12 — Both teams wind up the season in a blaze of glory defeating Nichols 40-6 and 3-0 in home territory, clinching second and third places in the League in football and soccer respectively, if not respectably. S. S. A. booters remain undefeated in evenly matched contests throughout the League, featuring tie scores in six games out of thirteen.

Wednesday, November 16 — With the fall season over, Manager Dave Reed's Canasta team can boast of an impressive string of victories. Unless they can be talked out of using their famous uniforms, featuring long-sleeved shirts and well-fingered decks of cards, it is doubtful whether the champs can be taken by any of the local challengers.

Wednesday, November 23 — Thanksgiving finally arrives and we all wish Uncle Tom good luck making like the Pilgrims, turkey-hunting among the Somerset maples.

Monday, November 28 — The day after vacation and the only good thing we can say about it is that it is the twentieth day away from another vacation.

Saturday, December 16 — Not long now that vacation has begun (Thank God) till Santa hits the highroad for Pittsburgh chimneys; meanwhile the streets are full of duplicates radiating Christmas Cheer with a guttural "Put a nickel in da tambourine, Bud."

Monday, January 2 — Popular snatches of funeral dirges heard currently around the quad include "Deep Purple" and a new, more forceful ditty called "Blue You Can Cut With A Knife."

Wednesday, January 18, 4:30 A.M.— The basketball team of 1967 at S. S. A. and Pitt is assured of a rosy future by the birth of a seven pound, thirteen ounce son to Mr. and Mrs. F. Walter Jones.

Monday, January 23 — Day Students never had it so good; Mike drives up to the familiar stops today in a 60 passenger Mack school bus and has considerable trouble luring suspicious Day Boys to try out the unprecedented change.

Monday, February 6 — Jack Pope, obviously in a terrific hurry, dashes up to our favorite clip artist and asks how soon he can have a shave. Eyeing Mr. Abercrombie's protégé, the barber shrewdly estimates "In about three years."

Friday, February 10 — Soon to be honored in chapel are Doll-face Demmler, later to acquire dramatic fame as killer, Roving-eye Ream, Funnyman Franklin, A. I. Whiff-that-hair-tonic Frank, and Hilarious Heymann as they collect Cum Laude keys. Congratulations, gentlemen.

Monday, February 13 — The silent Seven with the cerise silk of Sargon include Killer Cuda, Mac the Moo Reed, Captivating Kesel, Fearless Finn, Jason Skinner, the sycophant pledge, Bannerot, and Franklin, world's worst pledge since Heymann.

Thursday, February 23 — Mr. Waldrop, with assistance from Ream and Frank open the '50 Red Cross Drive. Dig deep, ge'men, 'tis a worthy cause.

Saturday, March 4 — Basketball and Wrestling teams of real quality show their worth to U. S., copping a twin championship on foreign ground.

Friday, March 10 — College Board exams tomorrow. We all know how important these quizzes are to entrance examiners at college. Everybody plans to do well. Say no more.

Saturday, March 11 — The first three hours not so bad, although no one seems to think he has passed. Easy, compared to the afternoon Achievements. Being well prepared by Shady Side's finest, hardly any of our boys had to be carried out.

Friday, March 24 — Orchids and numerous other posies to the cast of "The Petrified Forest," this year's Gargoyle production, for a fine performance.

Friday, March 31 — Word is seeping out that secret investigations, sponsored by the recent F.B.I. speaker in conjunction with the faculty, are being carried out by undercover underform agents to discover what subversive activities are being conducted in the dark recesses of the locker rooms just before chapel. Cooperating are the members of the Chapel Spotter Squad operating to check scholastic bookworms working during Chapel services.

Saturday, April 1 — Thought this feature was going to be funny, eh? April Fool.

Monday, April 10 - Fast vacation, wasn't it?

Sunday, April 31 — Tomorrow promises to be the first of May.

Monday, May 1 — Right again. Could this madness be spring?

Monday, June 5 - What do you know! They are here again.

Tuesday, June 6 - Still here, but the novelty is wearing off.

Thursday, June 8 — Well, that's that. I wear a cap and gown size 18.

Saturday, June 10—"S" Book says Class Day and Commencement—Hard to believe but we'll take their word for it, and with happy and sad reminiscings of the past, and hope and determination in the future, the Senior Class of 1950 bids adieu to S. S. A.

FRED BANNEROT

ID YOU KNOW 1. That five masters now serving the Academy, Mr. Alexander, Mr. Shriver, Captain Palmer, Mr. Junes, and Mr. Waldrop have contributed a total of 152 years of experience to the school?

2. That the present day library, once known as Aiken House, served as one of the first dormitories, white Mr. Cochran's Room 9 in Rowe Hall housed the library?

3. That Mr. Vorce is the last stand of bachelorhood on the campus?

4. That the Shady Side traffic problem would have been eased considerably if the original plans for a violin-shaped driveway encircling Rowe Hall had been completed?

5. That the rower of McCune Dining Hall was modeled after the architecture of Independence Hall in Philadelphia?

6. That Morewood House was built in a dynamited excavation, or to the students at the time, a hole? Later great quantities of earth surrounding the building were removed to the disappointment of dwellers of the second story who could no longer stroll out of their windows at will.

7. That the gym was until about 21 years ago located in Bayard House? Mr.

Shriver's trying room is merely a converted shower room.

8. That the Dining Room was at one time located in the basement of Rowe Hall, with adjoining kitchens operating from the locker rooms?

9. That the late Hervey Allen, celebrated author of "Anthony Adverse" was graduated from S.S.A. in 1909?

10. That the beloved Mr. Dickey taught mathematics at Shady Side for 48 years from 1896 till his death in 1943?

11. That the late Governor Cross of Connecticut taught at S.S.A. from 1889 to 1894? About this same time the father of Dr. Phillip Hench of Mayo Clinic, an exstudent famous for his part in the discovery of a new cure for arthritis, was a master at the Academy from 1893 to 1911.

12. That there was a time when the Rowe Hall outside bell rang 40 times throughout the in-between-class interval?

13. That Mr. Jones has his name written in the cement sidewalk at the University of Pittsburgh? This is an honor reserved for the outstanding leader in the graduating class based on achievement in scholarship, sportsmanship, and leadership.

14. That flashing back to early school history, S.S.A. contributed in a big way to professional baseball? Edward Reulbach '96 led the National League in victory percentage consecutively in 1906, '07, and '08 as a pitcher for the Chicago Cubs.

15. That since 1923 the Shady Side gridders, in taking 7 League championships, have won 104 contests as opposed to 71 for their rivals, including undefeated seasons in 1929 and 1940?

16. That the familiar "White" dump truck used for odd jobs around the campus was once hailed as Day Boy Bus Number 2?

17. That Mr. Celestin during the years from 1938 to 1942 held the position of French Consul in Fittsburgh?

18. That Mrs. Waldrop was the librarian for the Academy from 1923 to 1925?19. That since its founding in 1883, 8 headmasters and 173 teachers have served the Academy? 20. That during last winter's coal shortage the powerhouse continued to consume

6 to 8 tons of coal daily? We still had no vacation. 21. That with Mr. Mead leading the pack with five, the faculty have been papas

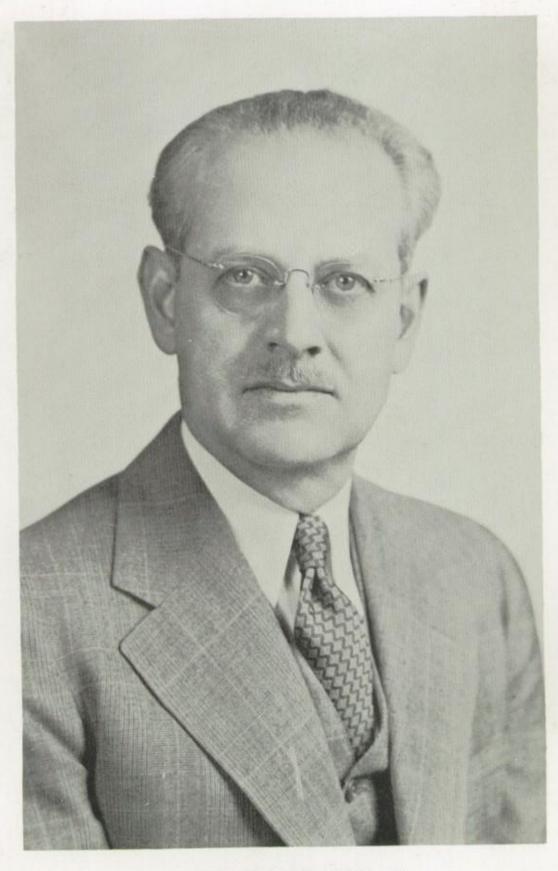

31 times? 22. That in spite of the strengthening of requirements, Sargon Society this year has a record number of members? 23. That the basketball team, over a three season period, has won 11 straight League games? Next year's team promises to be the tallest in the history of the school.

24. That if one looks long enough, he can make a statistic out of almost nothing? Witness this: There is one dog on the campus for every 24.6 members of the student body.

many school activities; special wartime courses were added to the curriculum; acceleration of scholastic programs was provided for to enable boys to finish their secondary schooling before being drafted into the service. The graduation of nine boys in January 1944 saw the beginning of midterm commencements which were continued during the war years. Following the cessation of hostilities in 1945, Shady Side, along with the rest of the country, returned quickly to a peace-time routine.

At this time a glance at the development of Shady Side's athletic program would perhaps be of interest. During the first year on the Fox Chapel campus, football, basketball, hockey, baseball, track, tennis, and golf were varsity sports. As previously mentioned, soccer and wrestling were soon added. In the fall of 1947 cross-country running completed the wide range of athletics now offered to the students of Shady Side.

The formation of what has become the Interstate Preparatory School League grew out of occasional contests with Nichols and University School as far back as 1897. In 1920 we began regular games with these two schools, and the Tri-State Prep League was formed to embrace Shady Side, U. S., and Nichols when University entered football competition in 1925. Western Reserve Academy of Hudson, Ohio, admitted in 1928, later dropped out, and was readmitted in 1937. The admission of Cranbrook School of Detroit in October of 1941 completed the league membership as it stands today.

Perhaps a rapid survey of the development of the physical plant of the Academy will also be of interest. When the first students arrived on the campus in October, 1922, only Ellsworth House and Rowe Hall had been completed. Even these required many finishing touches; for instance, workmen installed radiators while classes were in session. At Thanksgiving Morewood House was completed, and by the end of the 1924 school year the dining hall was ready for use. When school reopened in 1924, the infirmary had been completed and stood ready to serve the physical needs of the students.

From 1924 until 1936 Aiken House, the present library, served as a dormitory. A gift of the McCune family made possible the conversion of it into a library adequate to serve the needs of a growing school. The erection of Bayard House in 1924 provided sorely needed athletic facilities, there having been no gymnasium or locker rooms during the first year at the country campus. After the construction of Curry Gymnasium in 1929-30 Bayard House was converted into a dormitory. The last of the four dormitories to be built was the largest — Croft Hall, finished in 1931, a gift of Mr. Harry Croft. Eastover, the home of the headmaster, was built in 1931, and the home of the business manager was constructed in 1936.

Depression and war put an end to expansion of physical facilities until 1947. In that year a pre-fabricated Gunnison house was erected on the lower campus for faculty housing. In 1948 the Kappel Faculty House, now occupied by Dean Alexander and his family, was erected. The interior of Rowe Hall underwent extensive remodeling in the summer of 1947 when three classrooms were built above the study hall to replace those taken on the first floor for administrative offices. The summer of 1949 saw the remodeling of the dining hall, which was beautified by the installation of a barrel ceiling and concealed cove lighting. Redecoration of commons rooms and hallways in the dormitories as well as improvements to the grounds have been carried out under the sponsorship of the Mothers' Association, founded in 1946. The most recent improvements have been the cutting of two new entrance doors in Croft Hall and the creation of two apartments in the third floor of Morewood House used for living quarters for faculty and staff.

Now that we have reached an end to this history we might ask what has been accomplished. Certainly the work in itself is not perfect. Much has been omitted for lack of space. Many interesting little details, such as the rule in force in the early 1920's requiring all students to wear hats during the winter months, the advertisement in one Academian urging mothers to attend YWCA gym classes, and the Shady Side-University School football game in 1925 which U.S. won 7-6 without making a first down, couldn't be included. Yet there should be something to be learned from this. Perhaps it is the thought that while it may be for old men losing their powers to dwell principally on the past, we too may find inspiration in this story. Perhaps it is the inspiration from knowing that it took men and boys with dreams and ideals to build Shady Side to what it is. Today we have reached what many fifty years ago would have considered the ideal, but we must not stop here. It is only with new dreams, new ideals, new energy in the effort to reach them, that Shady Side can continue to grow, to improve, and to keep its present position as one of the nation's best.

Jack Demmler

A glance through the following pages will reveal the names of many alumni and friends of Shady Side who seem always willing to support the activities of the Academy. The 1950 Academian Board wishes to thank sincerely the advertisers without whose willing support this yearbook could not have completed publication.

In addition we would like to express our sincere appreciation to Mr. Cochran and Mr. Waldrop for the many hours they spent in helping us make this year's Academian a success.

COAL

This all-important product plays a very prominent part in the economy of our nation. We are all familiar with the use of coal as a fuel for steam locomotives to supply transportation, by the utility companies to give us power and light for our homes and industries, and its use in the production of coke, one of the basic raw materials for the manufacture of steel. But how many of us realize the uses made of coal in the chemical field? Coal chemicals play a very prominent role in our everyday living.

The names of many of the coal chemicals, such as naphthalene, benzol, pyridine and others, are unfamiliar to many people, but the materials produced from these chemicals are everyday necessities. Nylon, flavorings, aspirin, sulfa drugs, automobile tires, perfumes, dyes, paint, fertilizers, plastics and insecticides—all of these are only a few of the products too numerous to mention in which coal chemicals and their derivatives play a major part.

Thus it can be seen that almost every phase of our daily living depends on the continuing operation of the nation's coal mines.
